9•	By late September the Tsingtao Peoples' Air Defense Committee, in cooperation with the Tsingtao Garrison Command and the Tsingtao Public Security Bureau, completed construction of air raid shelters in important areas in Tsingtao. All residents of Tsingtao, on orders from Tsingtao authorities, were placing sandbags against the walls of their homes and obtaining water buckets for use during air raids. Medical personnel were giving first-aid training to large numbers of residents. Students, supervised by Public Security personnel, were publicizing the importance of air defense measures throughout Tsingtao. According to the public announcements of Tsingtao authorities, these precautionary measures were taken in anticipation of possible air raids by the Nationalists and the United States planes.
